FOR BOY IMMIGRATION.

New Zealand Parliament Discusses Getting Labor From England. oreign Correspondence of The Star.

WELLINGTON, N. Z., July 14, 1910. A discussion has taken place in parliament regarding boy immigration from England. The system was opposed by the labor members, who argued that the 8 a.m.: Great Falls-Temperature, 81; government had no right to take action detrimental to the workers. The premier replied, stating that there was a scarcity of boy labor, both for farming and for government departments. Thomas Mackenzie, minister of agriculture, in a vigorous speech, defended the principle. Apart from the New Zealand point of view, he said, they should consider its imperial aspect. Instead of allowing Great Britain's best emigrants to go to foreign countries they should unite Potomac clear and Shenandoah slightly with the motherland in inducing the surplus youths to fill the empty spaces over seas. Not only would they thus provide labor for the development of the agri-That the Anne Arundel county, Md., cultural industry, but they would assist by the instructions just issued to all trade to Great Britain, whereas, if setsented only $1.25 worth of trade.
